Even though it takes pork four hours to leave the stomach, and six more to be dissolved and absorbed in the small intestines, what does that matter so long as it is completely assimilated by the end of that time, as it is in 90 per cent. of all digestive canals? It is the slowest, but also one of the surest, foods that we have to give off all its energy to the body. Its very slowness is what gives it its splendid staying power for hard work, whether muscular or mental.

As a matter of fact, we have seen more cases of dyspepsia cured by the use of breakfast bacon than by any kind of drug or restricted diet.

An adult alimentary canal which cannot digest bacon or ham is not to be regarded as healthy, and instead of humoring and giving in to a weak digestion, it should be braced up, and under skilled supervision educated to take what is given it and make no fuss. Stomachs can be shoiled by giving them too little to do almost as easily as by giving them too much. A healthy stomach, fit to cope with the emergencies of life. must be able to digest not only that which is digestible, but much that is difficult of digestion, and that is the standard which should be aimed at in dietetic therapeutics.
